Sharpen your research skills and gain insight into human behavior.

The Ursuline psychology curriculum will introduce you to the study of human behavior and mental processes. Psychology majors are trained in the Boulder Model, which includes courses in the scientific process as well as the practical application of psychological principles. Students can focus their Psychology elective coursework on a variety of pathways. Students can choose electives in Clinical Forensic Psychology, Experimental/Cognitive Psychology, Industrial/Organizational Psychology or School Psychology depending on their interests and post-baccalaureate goals.

The Psychology program provides the opportunity for students to blend the strengths of a strong psychology major with psychology electives for various applications in the work place.
