Careers

Graduates with a degree in English are well-suited for careers in fields such as:

- Advertising
- Business
- Government
- Human Resources
- Law
- Marketing
- Publications
- Public relations
- Sales

Master the language.

As an English major at the Ursuline College Campus of Gannon University, you'll have opportunities to practice what you're learning. You might be the next member of the editorial board for the literary and arts annual, Inscape, earn your induction into our Epsilon Psi chapter of the national English honor society, Sigma Tau Delta, or use storytelling to create public good through the Rust Belt Humanities Lab.

English majors can convey ideas and information clearly and concisely, both in writing and in speech. Your heightened awareness of the power of language and understanding of various literary traditions allows you to be adaptable writers and communicators in a variety of job sectors and concentrations.

"Ursuline allowed me to expand upon the ambitions I have always envisioned at a young age."

Inscape

Inscape, Ursuline's award-winning fine arts annual, is edited and designed by students to showcase their own and other students' powerful creative writing and visual art. Inscape provides all students the chance to have their work seen, heard, and recognized. It's a tradition dating back to 1945! Inscape has been honored with numerous awards, including the prestigious First Class Award from the Associated Collegiate Press.

*For first-time, full-time students, these requirements are subject to change with the upcoming merger with Gannon University.
